The Cake Box

Comedy. Five minutes before a wedding reception, Mo and Kit stand over a cake box. Mo promised to bring the cake. Kit has the car keys.

Mo Hold the bottom.

Kit I am holding the bottom. There usually is a weight associated with cake.

Mo They did a wonderful job with the box, though.

Kit Mo. Where is the cake?

Mo I gave it a seat belt.

Kit In my car?

Mo The car you parked beside. Same seats. Same little tree hanging off the mirror.

Kit Mine says pine.

Mo I am prepared to concede that yours says pine.

Kit What did the other one say?

Mo Just married.

Kit Give me the box. If we run, we can still catch the right wedding.

Second take

Kit already knows where the cake is. See how long you can get Mo to keep talking.
